More Praise for Peter

Approval of City Clerk and Assessor Peter Mawdsley's painstaking work in re-assessing Carmel property so that it corresponds to the county assessment rate extends beyond the city limits. Not only has he received a congratulatory letter from DeWitt Krueger, Chief of Division of Research and Statistics of the State Board of Equalization, but there appears in the State of California Assessors News Letter, a bi-monthly magazine, published by the Board of Equalization, the following item:

CITY OF CARMEL COORDINATES ASSESSMENTS WITH COUNTY

The Friday, June 30, 1944, issue of The Carmel Pine Cone Cymbal carries an excellent article on coordination of the city and county assessments. City Clerk Peter Mawdsley increased the assessments from 40 per cent to the county 50 per cent ratio. He joined with County Assessor Walter Tavernetti in this year's reappraisal and to review the assessment roll generally.

City Clerk Mawdsley in commenting on the change stated: "There is absolutely no valid reason why two different values should appear on two different tax rolls for the same property because there can't be two values, and there is no justification for the inordinate waste of time caused by the existence of two values and all the resultant confusion."

DeWitt Krueger in his letter to Mawdsley says, "I am sure that the many advantages mentioned in your statement will be obvious to every one soon after the new roll is operative as a tax base. As you very logically point out, although assessed values are increased, the tax rate has been de-

Kathleen Prewett Sworn into WACs

Kathleen Prewett made a trip to San Francisco Tuesday to be sworn into the WACs and applied for service with the Army Air Force.

A resident of Carmel since 1932 when she came here from San Francisco, Miss Prewett has found time from her accounting and bookkeeping work for several local firms for voluntary community service that has been of inestimable value to the town. Officially she is a member of the post-war planning committee and co-ordinator of Civilian Defense. Unofficially, she has brought to bear her executive ability, tact, and logical habit of mind, qualities which she has to a high degree, to a number of community problems, allowing credit for the success of the undertakings to go to those ostensibly in charge.

Returning from San Francisco this week end, she will have a month's leave here before she is assigned to duty. She is the daughter of Mrs. T. H. Prewett of Modesto, which is also the home of her sister, Mrs. Cort Landon.

Mme. Elenore Altman, Concert Pianist, Pupil of Paderewski Here, Recalls Studies with the Master at Morge

BY IRENE ALEXANDER

Just four years ago a first visit to Carmel served as an unforgettable stimulus to Madame Elenore Altman, noted American pianist, reminding her that strong as her allegiance had grown to Tucson, where during the past fifteen years she has held the post of professor of piano in the University of Arizona, some vital part of herself was awakened by the sound of breakers, the smell of salt air and believe it or not, the welcome touch of our much-apologized-for fogs. Madame Altman loves 'em!

And so this summer she has returned to stay until September with her friend, Mrs. Phil K. Gordon, in her house on San Antonio street, laying out her days with such meticulous blueprinting that to catch more than a fleeting glimpse of her chubby, not much more than five-foot person, surmounted by its electric halo of reddish hair, one must choose between interrupting the daily swim, the sunbathing schedule, or the six-hour period devoted each day to her piano practice. For Madame Altman, to the delight of her wide and unsatisfied audience, has decided to return in September to concert management, dividing her time equally between public performances and her classes at the University.

In a tete a tete, just as when seated at the keyboard of her piano before an expectant audience, Elenore Altman gives no suggestion of the temperamental artiste. There is a modesty of personality which makes it very easy indeed for her listener to become absorbed at once in whatever she is saying or presenting, and gradually one becomes aware of an unusual intelligence, a sincere warmth, an artistic consecration which is entirely without mannerisms or affectations.

She is a native of New York, where at the instigation of her mother, a member of a family while not professionals, yet highly gifted in music, her study of the piano began so early that no memory antedates it. At the age of twelve she was taken by her

A G. I. Painter Makes a Pilgrimage To the Treasures of Rome; Sandbags Envelope Michaelangelo's Moses

Pvt. James Dale Trammell, who enjoyed the Sunday record concerts at the Carmel Art Gallery while he was stationed at Fort Ord, writes to Mrs. Elizabeth Cass, curator of the Gallery, his impressions of Rome as he saw it for the first time, shortly after the German troops had withdrawn. Pvt. Trammell, a young artist of considerable promise, studied under Fletcher Martin at the Kansas City Art Institute. One of his paintings, a tempora which he exhibited in the soldiers' show here in the Golden Bough Court several years ago was admired by a number of local art lovers and purchased by one of them. Since then Pvt. Trammell has been transferred to overseas duty and has seen action in the African and Italian campaigns.

Dear Libby:

A lot of things have happened to me since I wrote you last. Of most interest were the visits I made to Rome. Most of the works of art have been stored or sandbagged for the duration, and I was able to see very few of the things which I had been looking forward to seeing. St. Peter's is one of the few places which are open to the general public, and it was the first place I visited. There I was able for the first time to marvel at something created by Michaelangelo in his magnificent conception of the cathedral itself. The interior is colorfully decorated in mosaic. It is perhaps a little too gaudy in places, but I was able to overlook this fact after the drab life I had been living for so long. Even the pictures in the cathedral are in mosaic but, unlike the old masters, the makers did not try to exhibit the characteristics of the mosaic but attempted to reproduce the qualities of canvas painting and in this they have almost succeeded. As a matter of fact, the first time I visited the place I thought they were paintings. When I did learn that they are all mosaics, I came to the conclusion that

Pine Cone Poetry Column Contributor Wins Song Award

Readers of the Pine Cone Cymbal who listened in on the KPO six o'clock program Monday evening, known as A Song is Born, were treated to the premiere of The Convoy Song, words and music by D. L. Emblen, a frequent contributor to the Pine Cone poetry column, and delighted to hear it judged the evening's winner. An award of a $25 war bond was given to Poet Emblen, now on service in a U. S. Navy sub-chaser somewhere in the Pacific.

A new poem by Mr. Emblen will appear in the Pine Cone column of next week's issue.

City Budget Upped $10,000; Tax Rate Lowered 25 Cents

The City Council Wednesday night fixed the tax rate for 1945 at $1.00, a drop of 25 cents from the 1944 rate to equalize the raise in assessment from 40 to 50 per cent of valuation. A breakdown of the tax levy and an explanation appears below in a statement prepared for the city council by City Clerk Peter Mawdsley.

A city budget of $83,156 was also accepted by the council, an increase of over $10,000 in last year's budget of $72,985. This represents an increase of only $1,051 in the amount of money to be raised by taxes, however, as the 1945 tax requirement is $44,246 against the 1944 requirement of $43,185. The rest of the fund for the increased budget is derived from unspent surplus and has been largely assigned to the street fund, and parks and playgrounds, from which it has been accruing and where it will continue to accrue until after the war when materials are available and when much needed work can be done. Also, a new

Adrian Harbolt's Division Cited For Gallantry

Coxswain Adrian Harbolt, U. S. N. R., of Carmel, who enlisted immediately following Pearl Harbor and was assigned in July, 1942, to the first South Pacific Naval Expeditionary force, this week received from the Secretary of the Navy in the name of the President of the United States his citation shared by the First Marine Division, Reinforced, under command of Major General Alexander A. Vandegrift, U.S.M.C.

The citation reads as follows: "The officers and enlisted men of the First Marine Division, Reinforced, on August 7 to 9, 1942, demonstrated outstanding gallantry and determination in successfully executing forced landing assaults against a number of strongly defended Japanese positions on Tulagi, Gavutu, Tanambogo, Florida and Guadalcanal, British Solomon Islands, completely routing all the enemy forces and seizing a most valuable base and airfield within the enemy zone of operations in the South Pacific Ocean. From the above period until 9 December, 1942, this Reinforced Division not only held their important strategic positions despite determined and repeated Japanese naval, air and land attacks, but by a series of offensive operations against strong enemy resistance drove the Japanese from the proximity of the airfield and inflicted great losses on them by land and air attacks. The courage and determination displayed in these operations were of an inspiring order."

Coxswain Harbolt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Harbolt of Mission street and Twelfth. His brother, Staff Sergeant Tom Harbolt, joined the armed forces in September, 1941, and was sent overseas last November. He is now serving as a member of the U. S. Air Corps ground crew in England. His sister, Mrs. Harry Leonad, the former Maxine Harbolt, and her year-and-a-half-old daughter, Sid-

Jack Mayes Back From Alexandria And Way Points

Home on a 22-day leave from his duties as an armed guard on a merchant ship is Seaman First Class Jack Mayes, Jr., U.S.N.R., after an absence of ten months, during which he has covered many miles of ocean and caught a glimpse of such far places as Tasmania, Ceylon, Calcutta, Bombay, Alexandria and Gibraltar.

The rigors of standing watch, cleaning guns and wielding a paint brush, to say nothing of keeping on alert while Jap submarines pursued and German planes reconnoitered, have not robbed sailor Mayes of his sunny smile, nor prevented him from adding a good forty pounds to his weight.

He found the climate and scenery of Hobart, Tasmania, somewhat like that of Carmel, but was disturbed to see that the local girls were "just about ten years behind ours" with their ankle-length skirts and ungainly hair-do's. However, they were all very friendly about dancing with the visiting sailors, and inviting them home to have dinner with the family. Colombo, on Ceylon, struck him as exceedingly dirty, with its few white people, and the natives garbed in long, soiled robes of silky material, dragging their own vehicles through the streets. He encountered a great number of Dutch people in Calcutta. Highlight of his visit to Bombay was the celebration there of his 19th birthday on February 10, when to his surprise the orchestra of the Green Hotel broke into the strains of "Happy Birthday to You" in his honor.

For three days on his way back from Calcutta, the ship was trailed by a Japanese submarine.

"We were on firing practice," he explained, "when we looked up and saw the wake of a periscope, so we were able to open fire on it right away. But we didn't get it." Three days later, however, he witnessed the kill. An English corvette sent down its depth charges and pres-

All Steamed up with Rage, Monterey Lions Are Headed this Way

Whether or not there is blood on the moon is of no local concern at the present moment, as attention is deflected to the blood in the eyes of the Monterey Lions who are headed over the hill to meet the Carmel Lions on the high school field at 6 o'clock tonight for a soft ball game and revenge for the 15-9 walloping they received at the hands of the home club several weeks ago.

Pine Cone operatives, slipping over the hill one day when the sun was out and everybody blinded by the unaccustomed light, have returned to report that though they have as yet been unable to catch Tin Fry, Leo Abinante, Glen Foster and Company in the act, they have found ample indications that secret practices have been held on a secluded back lot in a less frequented portion of Monterey. As the Carmel Lions have been sitting on their haunches, enjoying the memory of past victory, betting in Monterey is heavy on the Mad Boys, though to date local money has remained loyal.

Raphael must have done his famous Transfiguration in mosaic. However, when I went around with the guide, he explained that all the pictures in St. Peter's are copies which were executed in mosaic from originals which hang in the Vatican Museum. The mosaics were done by Vatican craftsmen.

In the many alcoves there are monuments to the various Popes in marble. In one of the lectures I attended back at school, the instructor pointed out that sometimes the spectators are encouraged to touch sculpture because the oil from the fingers, by repeated touching, gives the marble an opalescent quality like that of flesh. This is very well illustrated by the sculptured monuments in St. Peter's. Down low where it has been repeatedly handled, the marble has taken on a pale yellow tinge which gives it the warmth of living flesh; up higher, the marble has retained its original coldness.

Outside of Michaelangelo's conception of St. Peter's itself, the most important thing I saw was Michaelangelo's Pieta which is located in the cathedral. It is exhibited up high on a pedestal and cannot be fully appreciated. However, I managed to make a fairly close study of it. And to think he created such a masterpiece when only 23 years old! I am dangerously close to that age and have nothing to show for it except a campaign ribbon!

The Vatican itself is closed for the duration so I was unable to see the Sistine Chapel and the frescoes of Michaelangelo or the other things in the Vatican Museum. Also all the other galleries are closed.

Although I knew that the statue would be sandbagged, I wanted to see the building—church—which houses Michaelangelo's Moses, in the hope that some of that man's genius might emanate from the building itself. I had some trouble finding it, and since it is located near the Forum, I stopped there for a while. I have acquired a strong distaste for all ruins, so I will not trouble you with how I was impressed. While I was standing on a hill overlooking the Forum, I asked a passing Italian if he could tell me where I could find Michaelangelo's statue of Moses. I had difficulty getting him to understand, so I decided to go about it bit by bit. "Capish Michaelangelo?" "Michaelangelo? Meekelangelo!" he exclaimed and then, swinging his arm in an arc which included the Victor Emmanuel monument, the Forum, and the Colosseum, assured me that, "Meekelangelo no create!"

I also saw the Pantheon and other places of interest. Considering that Italians do not believe in restoring their historical monuments, the Pantheon is in a remarkable state of preservation. To me such places as the Pantheon, the Temple of Vesta, etc., would be much more interesting if they were maintained at their original state of perfection. I think most people pass such things off with the remark, "How old it is!" But if they were preserved as a work of art, they would be fitting monuments to the grandeur of old Rome. After all, they were originally conceived as works of art, not as curios to attract tourists.

In spite of the fact that I was unable to see many of the things which I had so counted on, I was much encouraged by the city itself, for it is very beautiful and worthy of containing such great works of art. Of all the places I have seen, I think I would have to go to California to find sleek, ultra modern apartment buildings comparable to those which make up a large part of Rome. I saw most of Rome and not once did I see any real alums. They have another thing in common with you in California in their love of flowers. Even in the busiest part of the city, the streets are lined with trees blossoming forth with white, pink and red flowers. In at least one thing I think they outdo California: one of the city's strongest points is its many charming children. Unlike those in Naples, these are always neat and clean. The girls also have much to recommend them to anyone who is a connoisseur of beautiful women. But then, maybe, I was so favorably impressed because I had been living in the sticks so long!

International Hook-up Suggested at Rosicrucian Meet

A day, to be designated "International Day," which would be observed throughout the world, when, through international radio hookups and through the consuls of various countries, there would be an exchange of ideas of the people of the various countries, exhibits of their work, their native pursuits, their industries and other characteristics, was proposed at the recently concluded International Rosicrucian Convention in San Jose, California.

William G. Bishop of 6th and San Carlos who just returned as a delegate from the Convention, said that Ralph M. Lewis, Emperor of the Philosophic Order, remarked in his address: "It is generally agreed that the peace of the world will depend upon a mutual understanding of the problems of the peoples of the nations. Such understanding will eliminate suspicion, hatred and unintentional oppression through unreasonable tariffs and economic measures which tend to work hardship upon some nations."

Deer Plentiful, Few Places Open To Hunting Here

August 1 will be an important day for deer hunters in California when the season opens in Fish and Game Districts 2 (except Mendocino County) and 3. On that date, deer hunting will be permitted in the Counties of Sonoma, Marin, Napa, Solano, Yolo and that portion of Colusa lying south of the Ukiah-Lake Tahoe Highway; Alameda, Contra Costa, Santa Clara, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Cruz, Monterey, San Benito and those portions of Kings and Fresno lying in the Coast Range Mountains; Merced, Stanislaus and San Joaquin lying west of the San Joaquin River.

Wardens of the State Division of Fish and Game report on conditions in the Monterey area to open as follows:

Deer are quite plentiful and in fair condition. The outlook is good with bucks reported plentiful in most areas. Most of Monterey County will be closed due to the closure of the Forest and the country that the Army has. Nearly all ranches are closed to hunting except on permit.

Young Pupils Please At Evans' Recital

A charming little piano recital took place at the studio of Mrs. Emma Evans on Saturday night. The occasion was planned especially to present Sally Sue Logan, the gifted young student who after only eight months of teaching has advanced to such promising musicianship.

When she came to the piano, this little girl with long fair curls and a winning smile began to play with immediate poise and confidence. By intelligent phrasing and intrinsic rhythm she gave to each of her numbers its happy interpretation. She is a young pianist who will certainly go far in her work if she progresses as eagerly as she has begun. It is a pity that she is leaving Carmel so soon.

Lanny and Ronny Doolittle played both separately and together. Their duets were performed with real spirit and musical sense. They also will develop into good musicians if they continue as they have begun. Jack Logan played his Theme from Tchaikovsky with a firm, masculine touch. This young man has a restful quality about his playing. It is quiet and self-contained and gives indication of inherent strength.

It is difficult not to mention each young pupil separately. They all deserve it. They were a credit to their teacher and a delight to their audience. It is always amazing how Mrs. Evans brings out the individual characteristics in the children without imposing her will upon them. They display true musicianship and a surprising grace and facility. The program:

Sally Sue Logan: Rondo, Diabelli; Soldier's March, Schumann; Waterfall, Hobson; Moths, John Thompson; Titania's Dance, Florence Goodrich.

Lanny Doolittle: Sonatina, Kuhlau.

Patty Finley: Nodding Poppies, Melo Stevens; Starlight Waltz, John Thompson; Wood Nymphs Frolic, Michael Aaron.

Eden Cory: Sonatine in C, Clementi.

Jack Logan: Theme from Tchaikovsky Concerto.

Gay Masten: Warrior's Song, The Water Lilly, and Twilight Song, Ella Ketterer; Blue Danube Waltz, Strauss, arr. by Eckstein.

Jill Murray: Sonatina in G, Beethoven; Elf and Fairy, Bernice Bentley.

Ronny Doolittle: Trio from 3rd Sonata, Beethoven; Buree, Couperin.

Ronny and Lanny Doolittle: Duets: Minuet, Haydn; Marche Militaire, Schubert.

Sally Sue Logan: Allegre, Kuhlau; Innocence, La Styrienne and La Gracieuse, Burgmuller. Mrs. Evans at the second piano. Tatina Srsen, Valse - Brillante, Manna Zucca. D. H.

Clara Beller

Word that the death of Mrs. Clara Louise Beller occurred on July 17 in Detroit, Michigan, where she made her home for the past three years with her daughter, Mrs. Allen Trenner, comes as a sad shock to her many friends in Carmel.

Mrs. Beller was the mother of Carmel's well-known artist, Alvin Beller, and during the many years that she lived here with her son and daughter-in-law, took an active part in the work of the Church of the Wayfarer and its Woman's Auxiliary, in La Collecta, and as an officer of the Carmel Woman's club.

She is survived by her son and daughter and by two grandchildren, Allen Trenner, Jr., of Detroit and Gail Beller, who lives with her parents in San Diego.

nual meeting and its attendant program.

Noel Sullivan, president of the Society, will preside, and introduce the guest artist, Dr. Herbert Jan Popper of Stanford University. Dr. Popper will give a lecture recital on "The Music of Czechoslovakia," assisted by his wife, Mrs. Popper.

Dr. Herbert Jan Popper was formerly a conductor of the German Opera House in Prague. He was also symphonic conductor for the Czecho-Slovak State Broadcasting System until January, 1939. Those who have had the good fortune to hear Dr. Popper in lecture-recital are most enthusiastic over the coming program next Sunday afternoon.

After the war - what?

Standard of California's president looks at
V-day, and the days to follow

Right now, as our boys advance toward victory, our No. 1 job—like that of other industrial concerns throughout the country—is to produce for the war—in our case, aviation gasoline, long-range submarine oils, butadiene for tires, and other products to help toward that victory.

When that job is finished, we will be able to turn to some other important matters—among them re-employment after the war.

Our Company has several thousand regular employees in the armed services. Like all other employers, we are planning for their return. Not merely because the government has promised them jobs. We had already done that ourselves, just as we did in World War I. But because we want them back, and believe they will want to return.

Several hundred of our employees have already been mustered out and are back with us. They include some who wear the Purple Heart.

They include some who are partially disabled. These are getting individual, special attention. By their service to our Company and by their sacrifice they have earned everything we can do.

Today we contribute our humble bit to speed the victory. Tomorrow we shall do our bit to provide jobs and security for our once more united family.

Mme. Elenore Altman, Concert Pianist, Pupil of Paderewski Here, Recalls Studies with the Master at Morge

mother to Vienna, and there she became the youngest student at the Royal Conservatory, where for two years she was a pupil of the Polish pianist Melcer.

Those two years furnished her with few opportunities to absorb the flavor of old Vienna, however. For one thing, she was much too young.

"And Mother was much too strict," she adds with a reminiscent smile. "I do remember something of the thrill of seeing the crowds on the Prater, and of being taken to the Cafe Viennoise to sip coffee, and my immense admiration of the magnificent hair which all the girls in Vienna seemed to have, piled high on their heads in tier after tier of braids."

For the most part, however, life in Vienna for Elenore Altman consisted of being led daily by the hand to and from the conservatory, of practicing eight hours out of the twenty-four, and of attending ballets and concerts and being inspired by the conducting of Gustav Mahler.

Homesickness was paramount after two years and just at this time the Institute of Musical Art was opened in New York, with Sigismund Stojowski, a former pupil and close friend of Ignace Jan Paderewski, as head of the piano department.

"Paderewski," explains Madame Altman, "had been the first glamorous figure of my student years—with his amazing success, his poetic personality, the fabulous sums he earned, his private train, his personal cook, secretary, manager, all in top hats. As soon as we read of the new school to be presided over by his famous pupil, we came home at once so that I could enroll."

She remained at the Institute, now the Juillard Foundation, to study with Stojowski for six years, and was graduated with the artist's and teacher's diploma in 1913. How she attained for the following year the coveted rank of a pupil of Paderewski himself is best described in Madame Altman's own words, as she told it recently in an article published by the Tucson Star, on the occasion when she served as chairman of a silver tea given for the benefit of the Paderewski Memorial Hospital in Edinburgh.

"Each spring Paderewski would come to the Hotel Gotham to rest after his concert tour before sailing for his home in Switzerland. And each year we students prepared a recital of Paderewski compositions. Those were thrilling times—the master with his sandy hair like some exotic dandelion trembling in a fantastic garden of varicolored hats—the distinguished audience—the delicious confections by Sherry. And then the moment when, alone on the stage, we had his complete attention and could speak to him, in his own language, with all our trembling young souls."

"I am sure that none of us can forget the charm of his voice, the warm handclasp and the kind eyes, as he bent over us to say his words of praise. On one such occasion I played his Polish Fantasia. He became so enthusiastic that I dared to ask him whether I could come to study with him the following summer in Switzerland."

"Although he said 'Yes,' I am sure he had no intention of giving me lessons."

But Elenore Altman was on hand in Switzerland that summer of 1914, and for the entire year studied under the great master. She lived at Lausanne, and he at Morge, and from time to time, she explains, "the summons to come and play for him sent me into flurries of excitement. The sessions lasted from two to three hours. Details of those hours remain indelibly written on my mind. I realized then what Stojowski meant when he described Paderewski as a 'white flame'."

There were other memories of Morge, too, of brilliant gatherings, studded with celebrities of the day, where Sembrich sang and Hoffman played, and the guests often waited with a patience that amounted to reverence for as much as an hour before their host made his appearance. And when he did finally appear, it was inevitably a dramatic entrance, prepared for by the gradual arrival down the stairs of one after another of his constant attendants, Madame Paderewski in the vanguard, so that his own arrival bought the company willy-nilly to their feet.

After her year of study with Paderewski, Madame Altman returned to serve for fourteen years as a member of the faculty at the New York Institute of Musical Art, continuing the success of her debut in 1914 as a concert pianist in New York with countless other appearances on the concert stage in that city and elsewhere, acclaimed by critics as a superb artist, possessed of a wealth of fine tone, a sweepingly dramatic style, rich emotion and rare technical equipment, and as one disdaining applause for herself as a performer.

She came to Tucson first in search of health, and remained to make a secure place for herself not only on the faculty of the University of Arizona, but in many fields of community life where her versatility of talent paved the way. She has taught, given concerts, conducted a piano clinic and a radio program for which she wrote her own scripts and served as narrator, and as Arizona state chairman for the Paderewski Memorial Hospital, has given richly of her time and energy toward the establishment and maintenance of an Arizona bed in the Edinburgh institution. For relaxation she has done a mammoth task of research in the life and works of Schumann and has prepared for publication a textbook on a method for memorizing.

The only faint touch of pride discernable in Madame Altman's voice when one converses with her, however, comes at the mention of her daughter, Laura Marie, now wife of Lieutenant Paul James Bohannon, U. S. Army. Young Mrs. Bohannon, who makes her home in Washington, D. C., has already won fellowships at both Yale and Brown Universities in her chosen fields of anthropology and linguistics.

100 Doves of Peace For Pres. Roosevelt, Chang Shu-Chi Here

Prof. Chang Shu-Chi, well-known artist from Southern China, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lee and Mrs. Lee's two sisters, came from San Francisco to spend the past weekend in Carmel, where they visited the Carmel Art association gallery and renewed acquaintance with the family of Lt. General and Mrs. Joseph W. Stilwell. Professor Chang Shu-Chi was commissioned in 1940 by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to paint a scroll containing 100 doves of peace as a gift for President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and has exhibited widely in this country. Work of his appeared in a recent showing of contemporary Chinese art at the Metropolitan Museum in New York, and in addition he has exhibited at the De Young Museum in San Francisco, in Portland, Seattle, at the University of California and at the Stanford gallery, as well as in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Malcolm Woods Buys La Giralda Building

La Giralda building, Dolores and Seventh, was purchased from the Clare Stearns estate Wednesday by Malcolm Woods whose Dolores Pharmacy occupies the corner space of the building.

Mr. Woods came here in 1939 from Beverly Hills where he had been engaged in the drug business since his graduation from the University of Southern California in 1924. In search of a location to establish a pharmacy, he and Mrs. Woods looked over Santa Cruz first, then came to Carmel.

"We parked our car at Seventh and Dolores, saw that the store there was vacant and rented it. We have been here ever since."

WHAT'S DOING on the RECREATION PROGRAM

By HARRIET RUDD, Director

Wednesday, August 2, at 2 p.m. there will be a doll show and model airplane show under the auspices of the Carmel Recreation Program at Sunset Playground. All children are invited to attend and participate. Ribbons will be presented for different classes in each group. For example, in the doll show, the classes are largest, the smallest, the best story book doll, the best dressed doll, the most comical and the oldest in years. In the model airplane show of airplanes made by the boys, the awards will be made for the largest, the smallest, the neatest and the best engine propelled.

The swimming pool has had very good attendance in the past week and the classes are operating full to capacity. Good weather or bad, the boys and girls are turning out for their swim. Especially fun has been the 5 to 7 class on Tuesdays and Thursdays for the high school students who work during the day. It has been requested that people with cars park them at San Luis Ave. below the hill and the children walk up the path to the pool.

The cooking class produced a good batch of cookies for the U.S.O. Especially interesting is the fact that the children are donating their own materials. They are to be congratulated for their good spirit.

The nature study class spent its period the past two weeks on the rocks of Carmel Bay. Many good specimens were found such as: sea anemones, sea urchins, sea cucumbers, starfish and abalones. Different varieties of sea weed were also discussed. The next few periods will investigate the bird situation in Carmel.

RETURN FROM PUEBLO

Mrs. Thomas S. Arms and Mrs. H. B. Gainor have returned to their Carmel homes on San Antonio street after a five weeks' trip during which they visited Pueblo, Colorado, and spent a few days in Colorado Springs.

Hay Ride, Beach Picnic, Barn Dance For Teen Aged

Carmel's Teen Age Recreation club is now putting the finishing touches on plans for the evening of Saturday, July 29, which will include a hayride, a beach supper and a barn dance.

The couples attending these varied events may consist of a boy and the girl he has invited, or, in keeping with the school custom, invitations may be issued by the girl, a la Sadie Hawkins. Teen agers will assemble at the club at 7:30 p.m., where they will find the mood of the evening set by decorations of hay and other barnyard motifs. The hayride starts at 9:30 the wagon leaving the club and proceeding to the dunes, where there will be a bonfire and singing. Guests are advised to bring their own picnic suppers. The return hayride is routed up past the high school and after reaching the club the guests will dance until midnight. Chaperoning the affair will be Sergeant and Mrs. James Fontana.

Arrangements are in charge of the club steering committee, headed by Bill Finger and including Alice and Elizabeth Williamson, Jim Heisinger and Joan Dekker.

The proudest title in the Army

IT CONSISTS of two simple words.
Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it.
This title is simply:
"Good Soldier."

It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army.

For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC...

"They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

Good soldiers...

FIREMEN'S SHOW

BY JESSIE JOAN BEVER

The Firemen's benefit show, which played to packed houses at the Sunset Auditorium last Thursday and Friday nights, was a huge success, with a program varied enough to please any audience. It had everything—singing, dancing, music, funny gags, pretty girls—and acrobats!

The show started with a couple of fast numbers by the Jive Quintet from the Presidio of Monterey, who could really give out with the hot licks, and ended up with a stunning military number danced by Carmel's "Rockettes," the June Delight Dancers, consisting of Mimi Rookledge, Cheri Rookledge, Rose Marie Krupocki, Ilene Casvin, June Delight II, Billy Pat Torras, Ladisla Navaz, Patsy Canoles, Mary Masuen, Patsy Rosenblum, Carol Graham, Nancy Tyrrell, Glenda Hastey, Betty Jean De Amaral, with Muriel Doolittle at the piano.

In between were songs, very well sung indeed, by Carl Bensberg, Robert Jensen, Private Monty Masters, petite and pretty Etna Nevelle, and the inimitable Hildebrand Sisters, with Evelyn Nidever Hildebrand doing a fine job as accompanist. There were dances, spirited, gay, and graceful, danced by Billy Pat Torras, Patsy Canoles and Frankie De Amaral, and Mimi Rookledge, respectively. There was the hilariously funny pantomime of the ever-popular Bob Bratt, and the amusing patter and gags of Sergeant Gordon Ayers, master of ceremonies, assisted by his buddies, Private Hendricks and Private Masters, all of whom appeared through the courtesy of the Army Ground Forces Replacement Depot No. 2 of Fort Ord. And there were the Peavy Tumblers! They were wonderful. Such beautiful muscles, such poise, such control and SUCH tumbling!

It was a good show for a worthy cause, and everyone there, back-stage and out front, had a lot of fun.

IT'S QUITE AN OCEAN

An excellent opportunity to become acquainted with our neighbor and benefactor, the Pacific Ocean, is offered in a gaily covered monograph, The Pacific Ocean Handbook, by Eliot G. Mears, Professor of Geography and International Trade at Stanford, and published last month by James Ladd Delkins who recently put out an entertaining guide book to San Francisco.

The Handbook, designed to hip-pocket specifications, with its half dozen maps and charts, its chapters on the structure of coral reefs, earthquake zones, winds and currents, and the inhabitants of the South Sea islands, will be of especial interest to members of the armed forces stationed throughout the region. Whereas soldiers and civilians alike will find exciting reading on the subject of waterspouts, typhoons and cyclones. There is material for the naturalist and the reader who likes to explore new subjects in the sections devoted to Pacific Oceanic Birds, Range of Land-Based Birds, and The Golden Plover and Its Migrations. And there are over a dozen chapters on a subject that seems to fascinate the entire human race, from bootee age to wheelchair—the weather!

For us inhabitants of the Western Slope, about every third page contains a pat to the ego such as, "The Pacific Ocean is over twice as large as either the Atlantic or the Indian Ocean." Here are found the greatest depths to which the Ocean floor drops, almost seven miles in one place. Because of the greater depth, the volume of water, measured in cubic miles, exceeds that of all the other oceans and seas added together." That's our ocean!

POETRY

CARMEL BAY

We sing of Carmel's crescent shore,
Whose cliff-like wall
The crescent's body forms,
While circling arms
Reach points
With stony hands.
White shining sands
A long, wide mat provide,
And welcome breaking waves
In companies,
Like troops of marching men just coming in.
On the wall,
Symmetrical Cypress
Parade the winding drives
Informally.
Rough and lank—
Twisting trunks
Now stem to tops
Of Christmas green and cheer
That toss in the breeze
Throughout the year.
White Gulls,
Banking against the wind,
Pattern the flaming gold and blue
Of a sunset sky
That mirrors long, broad bands
On a restless sea.

—FREDERICK BLAINE HUMPHREY.

THIS WE CAN DO
(Blood Donors)

They marched away—your fair-haired soldier son
And he who spent his carefree youth next door—
A smile on brave young lips . . . helmet and gun
And all the grim accoutrement of war!
No looking back—except to say goodbye—
Their great concern, the grief it brought to you!
No weak, unmanly tears let dim the eye . . .
Bravely they marched—as you have watched them do.

Shall we, who tend our gardens in the sun,
Not match their "last full measure of devotion?"
No Levites here! Each a Samaritan! . . .
Though not our lot to breast the grieving ocean,
This we can do! . . . Our blood the minor loss—
So it sustain each bearer of the cross!

—BLANCHE DEGOOD LOFTON.

SPUN-GOLD

The sun is weaving of the western sea
A strip of cloth-of-gold that stretches wide
And swathes the vast Pacific endlessly.
The shuttle moves without a sound to guide
The slender threads upon her loom, the waves.
Fine-spun from rich cocoons of warmth and light,
It beckons to the fanciful and paves
A pathway rich with wonder and delight.
The persevering sun can know no rest,
No night, but weaves a silver cloth for day
In other lands, that morning seas be dressed
In scintillating patterns, tinsel-gay.
When afternoon takes up the thread—behold!
The morning silver turns to evening gold!

—DOROTHY LOOSLEY.

FASHION OPENS
AT FIRST THEATRE

BY ROSALIND SHARPE

"Fashion" or "Life in New York" which opened July 20 at the First Theatre, an amusing comedy of manners in the late 19th century, is not the usual melodrama with heroines tied to railway tracks and villains who snarl through heavy black moustachios, but the Gold Coast Troupers do it again, this time with Douglas Hume directing and playing Mr. Tiffany, the successful businessman caught in the throes of a guilty secret which makes him sweat visibly, and Wilma Bott starring as Mrs. Tiffany, the ex-miliner who aims to become the leader of styles and fashions in New York society and to launch her daughter, Seraphina, into matrimony with Count Jolimaitre, the catch of the season. Wilma Bott comes through with her usual performance as the supercilious, snobbish, vain and affected Mrs. Tiffany whose attempts to speak French for the sake of elegance are execrable and ridiculous to say the least. Louise Welty, the ever-charming and attractive leading-lady of the First Theatre, is an effective society belle coquette, the flirtatious and winsome Seraphina; and the costumes worn by both Seraphina and her proud mama, Mrs. Tiffany, are lavish, extreme and a triumph of ingenuity, for which laurels go to Rhoda Johnson. Jim Jensen as Count Jolimaitre, the aristocratic darling of the drawing-rooms, who strides and lounges and poses about in a red English hunting-coat with the most lurid changes of cravat (and finds himself involved with far too many women) gives the part a smooth and oily suavity which makes him an object of suspicion from the first.

Carmen Mercante as Millinette is a peppery and volatile lady's maid, Sammie McGill plays the colored butler, Zeke, who is fantastic in a brilliant green uniform, Dick Ruddy is amusing as Twinkle, the poet whose efforts to read his verse aloud are foiled repeatedly, and Bernice Blair as Mrs. Tiffany's sister Prudence, a typical old maid in cap and gown who flits about the stage having psychic premonitions is cleverly characterized. Our villain, the Confidential Clerk, Snobson, a sinister-looking individual with a perpetual sneer and handle-bar moustaches (brown, however, instead of the usual black) is played by Bob Ruddy, and we are overjoyed to greet him with a man-sized hiss when he threatens our poor Mr. Tiffany in the counting-house one fine afternoon. Mr. Tiffany, by the way (Douglas Hume), has only one expression throughout the performance—agonized terror, dread, premonition, torture, nervous tremors, glazed guilt, and possibly the tooth-ache. Phyllis Seltzer plays Gertrude, the Governess, the innocent, high-minded young creature whose position in the Tiffany household becomes questionable when the Count is found concealed in a closet, red hunting-coat and all. And John Dennis is superb as Adam Trueman, a farmer from Catteraggus, a hale and hearty 76-year-old gentleman whose bluff and hearty mannerisms, blunt speech, plain, unaffected dress mark him as a symbol of honest Americanism, hurrah! Into the Tiffany household of supercilious refinement and snobbish courting of European fashions this honest farmer strides in his high boots and has a grand time telling people what he thinks of them and laying Count Jolimaitre about with his cane when he finds him trying to kiss Gertrude the Governess in the Conservatory one luckless hour when she has foolishly sent away her lover, Colonel Howard. Todd Wilshire as Colonel Howard, complete with old Army regalia including sabre and maroon sash, impresses us with his noble air, long-suffering devotion and handsome carriage, but leaves something to be desired, perhaps, in the way of manly forcefulness. But the look he

ently up rose the bow of the submarine, a good two feet above the water; then it disappeared, and the pursuit was over.

Jack Mayes spent seven days in Alexandria, has high praise for its Red Cross center and all that was done by the organization for the comfort and welfare of the boys. His stay in Alexandria was enlivened by the news of D-Day. "We put on a big celebration, for every one of us felt sure this meant the war'd be over quicker, and we could get home."

All through the Mediterranean area his ship picked up the German broadcasting program featuring "Annie," who continually begged the American soldiers and sailors to give up and go home while there was still time, assuring them in a soft, persuasive voice that their defeat was certain. In between her spurts of oratory a sad-voiced male carried on with a choice selection of melancholy songs calculated to undermine still further the morale of homesick boys.

"I don't think they'd have been so pleased with the way the crew acted when we heard 'em," grins Seaman Mayes.

He hasn't encountered any friends from Carmel since he completed his boot camp training at Farragut with Bill McKinzie. Now he is spending his leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mayes, his grandmother, Mrs. Jessie Graham, and his uncle, "Scotty" Graham, in their home at Mission and Thirteenth. He is the third of four brothers, all in the armed service: Alex Mayes, stationed with the Infantry in Colorado, Bob Mayes with the Coast Artillery in Virginia and Bill Mayes, now on overseas duty with the U. S. Army.

He will report on August 7 to San Francisco for assignment to a new ship.

Eighteen Fires in Los Padres Forest So Far This Season

Up to June 30 a total of only 18 fires had occurred this year on Los Padres National Forest, burning over only 102 acres. However, as pointed out by Forest Supervisor S. A. Nash Boulden, the 1944 forest fire season has not yet gotten well under way.

Of these early fires only one was caused by lightning, the other 17 being started by human agency. Thoughtless smokers were responsible for most of these pre-season blazes. As the vegetative cover

RED + NEWS

By HELEN A. FIELD

It was a surprise to members of the staff of Carmel Red Cross to receive from the cleaner three pairs of heavy woollen socks. Upon investigation it was found that they came from Frank Ross, son of Judge George Ross, who is serving in the United States Merchant Marine. Some time ago his ship was torpedoed and sunk in the Indian Ocean. Picked up and taken ashore, his needs were provided for by the ever ready Red Cross. Among other things he was given these socks. When he could again supply his own needs he sent the socks home to be returned to Red Cross here for use in aid of other men in need. He is still in the service — whereabouts unknown.

Mrs. R. R. Wallace, Chairman of Camp and Hospital Service for the Carmel Chapter, is collecting toys for the Fort Ord Village Red Cross. There are some four hundred children of all ages at the Village and many of them spend much time at the Red Cross community house where three Red Cross workers are doing splendid service in recreation with them. Anyone who has toys to contribute please leave them at Carmel Red Cross Headquarters.

Anyone who wishes to sign up for work in case of disaster please notify the Staff Assistant in charge of the desk just inside the door at Carmel Red Cross.

Bruce-Potter Nuptials

In an impressive double-ring ceremony which took place at four o'clock on Sunday afternoon, July 23, in the Church of the Wayfarer, with Dr. J. E. Crowther officiating, Miss Constance Potter became the bride of Mr. Alan Bruce. The church, its candle-light altar massed with white gladioli and fern, was filled with the family and friends of the popular young couple.

The bride, attired in a white satin gown with long sleeves, sweetheart neckline, basque waistline and train, completed by a fingertip veil of tulle held in place by a Juliet cap fashioned of narrow criss-cross bands of tulle, carried a shower bouquet of white bouvardia and fern, centered by a white orchid. She was attended by Mrs. Edward G. Chase, Jr., as matron of honor, wearing a bouffant gown of aqua marquisette and flower headband which matched her shower bouquet of pink and pale yellow Delight roses and blue delphinium. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Shoemaker and Miss Jean Bruce, sister of the groom. Their dresses were of yellow marquisette, similar in design to the one worn by the matron of honor, their bouquets containing roses of a paler shade of pink.

Best man was Private Peter Van Arsdale Lee of Palo Alto, and ushers were Daniel Applebee of Blythe and William Coblentz of San Francisco.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Zenas L. Potter, now serving as special assistant to Chester Bowles as director of the Bureau of Congressional Information for OPA in Washington, where he and Mrs. Potter are making their home at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Also in attendance were the bride's mother, wearing rose-beige lace, a small white ribbon hat with veil and a corsage of white gardenias and pink bouvardia, and Mrs. Harold L. Bruce, mother of the groom, attired in pale green marquisette, and small flower petal hat of pastel green, with a corsage similar to Mrs. Potter's. Out of town guests included Dr. Mary L. Benton of Oakland, great-aunt of the bride; Mrs. William Robardo Hart of Berkeley, grandmother of the groom; his aunt, Mrs. Frank Bumstead of Berkeley; his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Durand Hart of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Beall of San Jose; Miss Alice Sanderson of Oakland; Mr. Eugene Murphy of Berkeley; Mr. and Mrs. Percival Fay of Berkeley; Mrs. Clarence Hoover and Miss Margaret Hoover of Palo Alto; Mrs. Richard D. Wyckoff of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart and Miss Jill Stewart of Berkeley and Mrs. Russell-Lee of Los Angeles.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Potter were hosts at a reception for the bridal party given in their La Loma Terrace home and attended by members of the family and close friends. Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Jack Streeton, Miss Virginia Wheeler, Miss Lynn Strasburger and Miss Ann Millis.

The new Mrs. Bruce is the youngest of the three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Zenas L. Potter; her sister, Miss Jean Potter, is at present in Alaska, preparing a book on aviation to be published by Macmillan's, and Mrs. Carl M. Hensel, the former Margaret Potter, resides in Minneapolis. Mrs. Bruce was graduated from the Carmel high school in the first class, 1941, later attending the International school at Geneva, Switzerland and the Roycemore school in Evanston, Ill. She is now a senior at the University of California, majoring in Social Welfare, and a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

Mr. Alan Bruce is the son of the late Harold Lawton Bruce, professor in the English department and Dean of the summer sessions for the University of California, and Mrs. Bruce of Berkeley and Palo Alto. He is a graduate of the Palo Alto high school and the University of California, where he was a member of Bowles Hall and Phi Beta Kappa. He is now a wage analyst for the National War Labor Board in San Francisco, where the couple will make their home following a brief honeymoon trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter plan to return to Washington on August 7.

fund of $5,578 entitled "post war program provisions" has been created to furnish money to match state funds available to the town for expenditure on plans for postwar improvements. In summary, the increased budget does not represent increased taxation to an appreciable extent, nor does it mean increased expenditure as long as the war continues. It is a distribution of savings among departments where expenditure is at present impossible, with exception of the fund for drawing up postwar plans.

The council's statement on the tax levy follows:

When the City Council sets a tax levy it is always figuring ahead to the end of the next calendar year because the city's fiscal year, unlike most cities in California, is the calendar year, and, consequently, in comparison with other places, we are looking further ahead in our estimates. For two years now the city council has recognized the necessity of being prepared for the end of the war with postwar projects designed to prevent widespread unemployment.

In such preparations it has not seemed expedient—in the uncertainties of the times—to contemplate bond issues for big projects, and, instead, the council has made various special budget provisions. It has also raised the nucleus of a fund for a waterfront protection project by a 7c seawall tax, which ran for two years and, in addition, by suspending projects set up for Major Street Improvements out of gas tax monies, it has accumulated a sizeable sum in a Special Fund for these works. A Capital Outlay Fund of $7,500 is being established at this time in line with State Legislative provisions. All these special provisions referred to have been earmarked and kept intact for use in postwar programs, so that it is now possible to set up such a program without bond issues and to carry it out at no extra cost to the taxpayer because of the advance provisions made, as stated above.

The tax now being levied—$1.00 for all purposes—compares with $1.25 in the previous year, the reduction having been brought about, roughly, by changing the base from 40% to 50%. This dollar is made up of three taxes, namely:—

General Fund	$.82
Municipal Improvement Bonds of 1936 (Fire House)02
Library Fund16

Total—All purposes

$1.00
The 1930 Fire Engine Bonds will be paid off next January and the money therefor is already in hand. The 1936 Fire House Bonds will run out on an even 2c tax for three years more. The Library Fund has been having 19c each year, but, on the new assessed value, will require only 16c next year.

Under the heading of postwar program there is a special item of $4,500 to cover plans and acquisition, which is to set up to account for part of the cash balance carried over and to qualify for matching by the State as 'local funds budgeted for that purpose'. It could probably all be used on projects now contemplated out of reserves.

A large part of the city budget is for salaries and wages and salary allowances. This amounts to 68% of the ordinary operating budget. Owing to this fact it is impossible for the Council to give further tax savings, because, under war conditions, it is this 68% part of the budget that not only could not be reduced, but has, in fact, in the last two years, increased.

The Council last year cut the extra 7c tax for seawall, and the City is almost free from bonded indebtedness. It now stands at $5,000, but after January 1945 will be only $3,000 and will run out in three more years. We passed a $10,000 bond issue two years ago for a new Fire Engine, but the Bonds were not sold and so there is no indebtedness on that score.

One project that has always been mooted in discussions of postwar programs is the building of a city hall, and that would, possibly, entail consideration of a bond issue. Except for that, and the question of an extension of the Library, the City Council has no intention of rushing into proposals that would saddle the community with bonded indebtedness for a long time to come, but rather is inclined to try other ways and means so long as they are adequate and economical. Even the City Hall and Library Extension might conceivably be carried out without bond issues.

The Council feels that for every year we can put off bond issues we shall be the gainer, financially, in view of the fact that construction costs will be likely to remain high for several years. Such a course would leave us free to try to catch up on the backlog of suspended work, including urgently needed maintenance as well as improvement of streets.

So long as we provide city funds for matching other funds (if any materialize) we can well afford to go slow on bond issues and watch the trend of things for a while. This is especially true in view of the possibility that another two or three years might indicate more definitely the desirability of our adjacent subdivisions coming into the city, so broadening the base and correspondingly lightening the burden of taxation.

Fashion Opens At First Theatre

bestows upon Gertrude—that of a sentimental spaniel begging for a bone—is enough to melt your heart.

Finally, there is George McElroy who played the negligible part of Augustus Fogg, an old fogey described on the program as "A Drawing Room Appendage." It remained a mystery why said Augustus Fogg was considered socially desirable as he had only two lines the whole show, "I detest conservatories," and "No, I do not object to dinner," but nothing daunted, George McElroy gave them all they were worth and embellished the part with rabbit-like facial twitchings, smooching of moustaches, expressions of distaste, and, on one occasion, affected unpleasantly by a drink which must have been pure vitriol, he burped and experienced a variety of bitter and fascinating sensations which riveted our attention.

Maxine Albrow's new sets are executed boldly and strikingly with a fine hand for color and design, and the palatial staircase with its green carpeting which leads off the drawing-room appears quite real. One of the best, perhaps, was a street scene of New York which appeared in the olio, and the new curtain, sporting lavish little female cupids, is intriguing although less baroque than the old-fashioned, melodrama curtain.

The olio offers some new numbers with the entire cast of the Gold Coast Troupers, and Douglas Hume functioning as Master of Ceremonies, and we are happy to see that the Quackenbush sisters are with us again, Louise Welty lending her talents with professional charm and wit.

TO PRESERVE TUBES

An automobile tire tube, when not in use on a car, is liable to deteriorate more quickly, the California State Automobile Association warns. The best way to preserve such valuable transportation equipment is to pump in a little air so that the tube will conform to its natural shape, give it a good coating of talc and store it in a cool, dark place.

Very Unharried, City Council Says Yes and Adjourns

Aside from the weighty business of approving the tax rate and budget (see page 1) the city council members had little of moment to occupy their attention at Wednesday night's adjourned meeting.

They chuckled over a post card from Police Officer Ed Jelich on loan to the United States Navy for the duration. He is in boot camp in Idaho and informed the council that after four weeks of training he is still alive, but misses the fog, as there is "lots of sun and dust here."

They granted permission to hang signs to Dr. Robert C. Hopkins, Amelia Myette and Mrs. Hilda E. Black. They also granted a transfer of business license from Carol Edwards to Mrs. Black, and a transfer of license from Cynthia De Loe to Ross Hendricks.

They listened to City Clerk Peter Mawdsley read a letter from Mayor Roger D. Lapham asking that Carmel citizens be advised to cramp their car wheel against the curb when parking on the San Francisco hills as the penalty for not doing so is a citation.

They listened to a first reading of an ordinance establishing a capital outlay fund against the day when materials are available and capital outlay will be possible.

They congratulated Councilman Allen Knight for his success in obtaining the services of the Shore Patrol to assist in policing Carmel.

They decided to go in a body at some future date to the Forest Theatre to inspect the Abalone League lighting equipment with a view of purchasing it for $500 as the Abalone League is loath to part Editorials...

(Continued from page 1) creased proportionately with the result that the average taxpayer is going to pay the same amount in taxes as he did under the old system. This type of city-county cooperation is very commendable and can only result in a better, more uniform assessment for the taxpayer."

As Mawdsley promised, taxes have been lowered to correspond to the up in assessment rate. Wednesday night the city council set the tax rate at $1.00 as against the $1.25 rate of last year.

with it for nothing, as the Forest Theatre would be useless without it, as its original value was $1,800, and if they do not buy it somebody else will.

Next meeting, August 9.

WESTS RETURNING

Mr. and Mrs. M. West who have been spending several weeks vacation in their cottage here "Westgate," are returning today to their home in Omaha.

Calling Mr. and Mrs. Big Heart No. 3, 4, 5

Seventy dollars dropped into the lap of City Clerk Peter Mawdsley this week for the Carmel Recreation Program, and the donors, whose names are withheld from publication on their own request are candidates for the title Mr. and Mrs. Big Heart No. 1, 2 and 3 in the opinion of Carmel youngsters who are enjoying their summer activities more than ever before.

But some more dollars are needed to keep the 70 company. There is no doubt that they will make their appearance as soon as Mr. and Mrs. Big Heart No. 4, 5, 6, etc. get around to stopping in at the city hall to leave their donations with the city clerk. If that is too much trouble, a check made out to The Carmel Recreation Program, put in an envelope decorated with one cent stamp and addressed to City Clerk Peter Mawdsley will turn the trick.

This program is really benefiting the youngsters—keeping them out of mischief, building up their health, assisting them to iron out personality difficulties through social contacts. It is the most worthwhile undertaking Carmel has attempted in years, deserving of the support of every citizen. W. C.
